STUDENT-ATHLETE

MENTAL HEALTH SUMMIT

Course Description

The Pac-12 Conference, the NCAA, and the Office of Continuing Medical Education, David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA will host a Mental Health Summit on January 16-17, 2020 at the Luskin Center on the UCLA campus. The conference provides a unique opportunity for a multidisciplinary exchange with the leaders in both research and the clinical care of competitive athletes as it pertains to mental health.

The course will feature sessions on effectiveness of mental health educational programming, mental health medical disqualification from athletic participation, management of eating disorders and substance abuse, mental health emergency action plans, exploration of models of care, psychology of injury, mental health screening, multi-disciplinary management of problematic cases, and panel presentations featuring athletic directors and coaches from around the NCAA to speak on current mental health topics.

The two-day program will bring together top clinical psychologists, physicians, athletic trainers, and administrators from across the nation to explore the important issues surrounding mental health, present new findings and discuss policies and procedures that can help better treat the mental health of athletes.
Course Objectives
At the completion of this program, participants should be better able to:

- Adopt NCAA and Pac-12 mental health initiatives
- Implement approaches to providing environments of supportive mental health care, promoting resiliency and supporting mental health concerns from the point of view of athletic administration and coaches
- Recommend effective educational programming for collegiate and elite athletes
- Identify optimal therapy strategies for patients with eating disorders or substance abuse concerns
- Select optimal screening strategies for elite athletes
- Apply institutional policies for medical disqualification for mental health diagnoses
- Compare the models of care available for athlete care
- Review emergency action plans for athlete mental health concerns in intercollegiate athletic departments
- Classify the psychological impact of injury and the influence on return-to-play progress
- Report a systematic approach to the multi-disciplinary care of mental health cases in the collegiate athlete population
- Address barriers to implementation of the evidence-based practices for mental health screening, treatment, and prevention discussed.

Target Audience
This course is targeted toward healthcare personnel within intercollegiate athletic departments who work directly with collegiate and elite athletes. This may include, but is not limited to, clinical psychologists, team physicians, athletic trainers, dietitians, academic advisors, and athletic administrators.

Disclosure Statement
The FDA has issued a concept paper which classifies commercial support of scientific and educational programs as promotional unless it can be affirmed that the program is “truly independent” and free of commercial influence. In addition to independence, the FDA requires that non-promotional, commercially supported education be objective, balanced, and scientifically rigorous. The policy further states that all potential conflicts of interest of the CME staff and faculty be fully disclosed to the program’s participants. In addition, Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education policy mandates that the sponsor adequately manage all identified potential conflicts of interest prior to the program. We, at UCLA, fully endorse the letter and spirit of these concepts.
